Harlow Moor. Harrogate is a fashionable inland watering place and not only stands high above sea-level, but is within walking distance of some of the finest scenery in Yorkshire. Harlow Moor, within a few minutes from Harrogate and its wells, is a fine extensive stretch of elevated moorland. The corporation acquired it from the Earl of Harewood in 1897, and, wise in their generation, left it as much as possible in its native wildness and beauty.
